TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,
Oct. 22nd, 1912.

Council met in special session for purpose of general business, Mayor Waller presiding.

Present—Mayor Waller, Reeve Alexander, and Councillors Madill, Denison, Dickinson and Carson.

A communication was received from Dr. McCullough, re sewage disposal works as follows:

Toronto, Sept. 26th, 1912.

Dear Doctor:

Referring to the inquiry personally made to me when I saw you last week, and which on account of my absence from the office I have been unable to answer at an earlier date I beg to reply as follows:

The question was as to the necessity of the municipal corporation of Napanee proceeding with the construction of the Sewage Disposal Works for that Town, plans of which were laid before this Board by G. C. Wright, Esq., C. E., and approved of by the Board. Having approved of these plans the Board will insist on their being carried out. The Public Health Act, Sections 95, 97 inclusive, cover this question.

The great danger to the public from extensive pollution of the water supplies of the province from indiscriminate disposal of sewage in waters from which supplies of water may be taken make it absolutely necessary that the law giving control of water supplies and sewage disposal to this Board shall be strictly enforced. With this end in view the Board has notified all municipalities in the province that they must as expeditiously as possible provide for a proper and approved plan of sewage disposal. Considering these facts you will admit that the Town of Napanee has not been discriminated against, but is merely required to do what other municipalities will be obliged to do, the whole question being the interest and safety of the public. There is no question but that your municipal corporation in carrying out these plans is doing something which the law requires them to do and moreover, is acting in the best interest of the people of the Town.

Yours truly,

WM. W. McCULLOUGH,
Chief Officer of Health.

DR. G. COWAN,
Napanee, Ont.

On motion filed.

Mr. John English notified the council that Mrs. Catherine Ann Knapp had been injured and her buggy damaged by driving into Centre street sewer and asking damages.

Councillor Osborne entered.

On motion the Clerk was requested to write Mr. English repudiating any liability as all necessary precautions were taken to safeguard the public.

A communication was read from the chairman of the Public Library Board asking for the annual grant, $300.

On motion the amount was ordered

Games for Thanksgiving.

Games of the Season.

Many people have enjoyed the Observation Game, where thirty or more articles are placed upon a table or hung upon a clothes-line, and, at a given signal, exposed to view for thirty seconds, while each person tries to remember the various objects displayed. At the end of the minutes the trial of memory begins, by the guests writing upon paper the names of the articles they saw.

This game can be varied by the testing of all the senses; for instance

Feeling.

Place around the edge of the dining table articles of all sorts, sizes and shapes, blindfold the guests and lead them to the table, allow them to walk once, slowly, around it, feeling of each object for a given length of time, then cover the objects, take off the blinders, and write the name of the articles that have been felt.

Tasting.

Take as many saucers as there are to be guests, and fill them with very small pieces of things to taste—as a salted almond, a peanut, a cranberry, a clove, pieces of peppermint, cheese, apple, cake, citron, raisin, orange, olive, pickle, celery, cracker, banana, lemon, fig, coconut, date, bit of cinnamon, etc. Your saucers are passed to each one, and at the signal all begin to taste. Allow sixty seconds, then gather the saucers, take off handkerchiefs, and write the names of the different things tasted.

Hearing.

Let the hostess and the host and one or two other persons go into the hall or an adjoining room, close the door and all begin playing upon different instruments—arranged so they can be caught up quickly—borrowed for the occasion, such as clappers, Jew's harp, harmonica, comb, bell, tin pan and stick, whistle, banjo, violin, tin horn, drum, toy fife and toy trumpet. The host can whistle a familiar air and the hostess can sing a refrain from some well-known song, while the others can quote from Mother Goose. As soon as the hostess appears the guests can begin writing the names of the different instruments, songs and recitations, if they can.

Oil heaters, oil lamps, gas lamps, electric lamps, hanging lamps, all kinds of lamp fixtures, burners, chimneys, wicks at BOYLE & SON'S.

On motion the Clerk was requested to write Mr. English repudiating any liability as all necessary precautions were taken to safeguard the public.

A communication was read from the chairman of the Public Library Board asking for the annual grant, $300.

On motion the amount was ordered paid.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported recommending the placing of an incandescent light at the corner of Robert and Ann streets.

The Town Property Committee reported recommending that the tank under the town hall be pumped out. Carried. Also that a hydrant be put into the hall and the use of the tank be discontinued. Referred back to committee.

On motion the Streets Committee were requested to have contractor Harvey put the road, sidewalks and culverts on water street in proper condition for traffic.

On motion the G. T. Ry. were asked to lay before the council their plans for the disposal of the refuse from the cattle yards before they be allowed to connect with John street sewer.

CHAMPIONS FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

N. C. I. Takes Six Out of Eight Games.

(Special to The Express.)

The return games with the P. C. I.
were played in Picton, Saturday, Oct.
19th, 1912. The games were all good, but Picton was a little too fast in the junior games and won out, though the scores were close.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL.

Napanee Juniors vs. Picton Seniors.

Picton thought they had to win one game, at least, so they put on a lot of seniors against our juniors, and then only beat us by a score of 3-1. The game was good, all the boys putting up the real stuff, but our forwards were too light, and Picton scored two, playing with the wind.

JUNIOR BASKETBALL.

This was a fiercely contested game and was not decided till the final whistle blew. All the girls put up great games, and the combination and checking was sensational. With the score tie 11-11, and one minute to play, Picton scored, winning by 13-11.

SENIOR BASKETBALL.

These game were more to the liking of the N. C. I. rooters, and led by their famous cheer leader, Russell A.
Williams, they tore off some newly acquired yells which made Picton's sound like the cooing of a dove.

This was also a very close game, but Napanee had the better of the argument. Picton showed improvement in combination and shooting. Score 15-11.

SENIOR FOOTBALL.

The Picton Seniors were tired after their morning's game and played poorly. Napanee beat them easily.
All the N. C. I. players were equally good and it will take a pretty good team to beat them. The score of this game was 6-0 in Napanee's favour.

They may get a chance at Belleville Monday.

SIDELIGHTS.

Judging by the looks of things coming home on the boat, Napanee will

UNIFORMITY IN CANADIAN DAIRY PRODUCTS.

A few months ago there was held at Ottawa a Conference of dairy experts and officials from all parts of the Dominion. The meeting was called by the Honourable, the Minister of Agriculture for the purpose of endeavoring to perpetuate the uniformity in quality and character of Canadian cheese, and butter that has been responsible for the success of Canadian dairying. As pointed out by the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, who presided over the Conference,
many things come up in the practice of dairying over which slight difference of opinion may arise so that it seems desirable to bring together from time to time those in charge of dairy schools, and the chief instructors, in the various provinces, to discuss methods and practices, in order to arrive at some agreement as a body of dairy advisors. The Conference lasted two days during which time many matters of importance were taken up and freely discussed. Some of these were the pasteurization of whey, factory refuse in relation to tuberculosis in hogs, testing and grading cream at cream gathering creameries, whey butter, methods of paying patrons of cheese factories, and other subjects relating to the production of butter and cheese. For the information of buttermakers and cheese-makers, and others interested in dairying, there has been printed a vebatum report of the proceedings of this Conference. Copies may be procured by applying to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

The Board of Control will discuss the matter.

COMBINE ILLEGAL

So Says Board Examining t Machinery Trust.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—That the Shoe Machinery Co. is a combination in restraint of trade is the conclusion arrived at by the board of inquiry dealing with the first case of combination brought under the Combines Act.

The matter has been under consideration for a long time, the proceedings being delayed by the challenging the jurisdiction of the board.

Action was taken under the provisions of the act when Hon. M. King was Minister of Labor, inquiry has been steadily maintained since Hon. T. W. Crothers took charge of the Department. The board's decision that the company combine within the meaning of the act was made by a number of shoe manufacturers, who charged that the company, which has patents on modern shoe machinery, had created an unlawful combination by refusing to sell the machinery its policy being to lease it.

Mr. White, the representative of the United Machinery Co., has to sign the report of Judge deau and Mr. Walsh, being filed with the conclusions arrived at. Although the details of the report have not been received, the natural conclusion is that the finding is against the company.

If that is the case, the patents may be cancelled throughout Canada, and unless the company has its headquarters at Ottawa, it is subject to a $1,000 a day and to indictment.

DUKE TELLS OF TRIP

H.R.H. Gives Impressions of His Canadian Tour.

He Says There Are No More Loyal
People In the Empire Than the Canadians and In His Travels He Heard No Hint of a Desire For Separation—People Are First and Politics Should Be Subservient.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—It was a two-fold message that his royal highness left with the members of the Canadian Club in the course of his brief and inspiring address yesterday afternoon.
He urged Canadians who would loyally do their part toward achieving the greatest destiny for their country to emphasize the importance of education in developing the young citizenship of the morrow, and to treat their political views as subservient to the advancement of their country and the prosperity of its people.

His royal highness was given an enthusiastic welcome. Referring to the long tour of the west which he has just completed, and which embraced the traveling of over 10,000 miles and the devotion of three months of time to the trip, his royal highness stated it had been full of deep interest to him. "I believe I have been able to gain some insight into many of the great questions affecting the Canadian people," he observed amid applause.
He returned with the conviction that "there was no more loyal body of people in the British Empire than the Canadian people."

"Canada is a democratic country," he continued, "and she is none the worse for that. And I rejoice that while she is a democratic country she is none the less attached to the old traditions of the country from which so many of her people came." He had felt, as he traveled the vast distances of her territory and witnessed the development of her lands and the growth of her towns, that no adequate recognition could ever be meted out to the men who had been the means of inaugurating this wonderful development, the pathfinders of the great new west.

"One thing that struck me specially," added his royal highness, "is the

GUNMEN SILENT.

Their Lawyers Keep Them From Testifying For Becker.

New York, Oct. 22.—What Sam
Schepps told his friends in Hot Springs, Ark., about the murder of Herman Rosenthal was read into the record yesterday at the trial of Police Lieut. Charles Becker, who is charged with instigating the crime.

"I don't want you fellows to think we killed a man who was of any account," Schepps told Postmaster Johnson of Hot Springs, according to Mr.
Johnson's testimony before the commission sent to Hot Springs to examine him and other persons. "That fellow Rosenthal is a dirty cur. He should have been killed. I don't want you fellows to think of me as a common murderer."

Mr. Johnson's testimony was read by John W. Hart, Becker's lawyer, with intent to support the contention that Schepps was one of four men who desired Rosenthal's death on his own account and conspired to kill him.

Thirteen witnesses, few of whom remained more than a few minutes on the stand, testified yesterday and brought the case swiftly towards its close. Indications at adjournment last night were that the defence would rest to-day without placing Becker on the stand, notwithstanding previous announcement by the accused policeman's lawyer that it had been decided to have him testify.

John F. McIntyre, Becker's chief counsel, said last night that he wanted, as witnesses, the four gunmen charged with shooting Rosenthal to death, but that the gunmen's counsel refused to allow them to testify. Mr.
McIntyre said he had been disappointed also in procuring the testimony of Wm. Shapiro, the driver of the murder car.

Among yesterday's witnesses were five policemen, three of whom testified that the raid on Rosenthal's gambling house by Becker's strong arm squad last April, was not a "fake" raid as the state charges, but was made two days after they had produced evidence of gambling on the premises.

Two inmates of the Tombs prison, awaiting trial on charges of murder, were brought across the "Bridge of Sighs" to deny the testimony of J. D.
Hallen, the convict who said he heard Becker tell Policeman White that the public would soon see Becker's men growing in our towns, that adequate recognition could ever be meted out to the men who had been the means of inaugurating this wonderful develop- ment, the pathfinders of the great new west.

"One thing that struck me special- ly," added his royal highness, "is the importance of the education of the young. It is in the proper and sym- pathetic education of the young of the Dominion—that the future of Canada lies." In the west he was inspired to find the great interest everywhere taken in educational work. The finest buildings were the school build- ings, and the largest expenditures of money were for educational enter- prises. This was as it should be, and he would urge in the strongest man- ner possible that this spirit be char- acteristic of the whole Canadian people.

"Another thing that struck me forc- ibly," proceeded the distinguished visitor, "is the strong and virile na- tional sentiment which exists. So great is the interest of the people in the country generally that they are ready to make their political views subservient to the advancement of the country. Politics is a necessity in our system of government—a right neces- sity—but there are moments when politics must be made subservient to the good of the country and the pros- perity of the people."

He had been told that in the west he might find a feeling among some in favor of separation. "I rejoice to say I did not find it in a single in- stance," he declared, amid applause. "From one end of Canada to the other, through the Maritime Provinces, the central portions and the west there breathes the same strong ideal of Canadian individuality; a Canadian peo- ple under the flag of Empire."

Many prominent persons were pre- sent, including Lord Milner and Sir Thomas Lipton.

To Investigate Drowning.

Galt, Oct. 22.—After consultation with the crown attorney, Dr. Radford, coroner, decided to hold an inquest on the body of Peter, three-year-old son of Wm. T. Burrows, drowned in an old cistern on the premises of Wm. Barnes Sunday. Investigation shows the cistern is 14 feet deep, with nine feet of stagnant water, the only covering being a piece of tin and two rotten boards. In the same yard is a well, 60 feet deep, with a decayed cover. The coroner believes an in- quest will have the effect of remov- ing these and similar death traps said to exist elsewhere throughout the town.

Parliament to Open Nov. 21.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The announcement in a special issue of The Canada Gaz- ette yesterday that the Dominion Par- liament will be opened on Nov. 21 was merely of interest as an official pronouncement, since the date was partially assured several days ago.

Parliament will this year meet four days later than last year, and later than even before for an autumn ses- sion.

Two inmates of the Tombs prison, awaiting trial on charges of murder, were brought across the "Bridge of Sighs" to deny the testimony of J. D. Hallen, the convict who said he heard Becker tell Policeman White that the public would soon pay Becker a pen- sion for killing "that — crook Ros- enthal." Several character witnesses also took the stand.

Waits for Roosevelt.

Princeton, N.J., Oct. 22.—Upon the news to-day of the effect on Col. Roosevelt of his trip from Chicago will depend largely Governor Woodrow Wilson's plans for the rest of the cam- paign. The Democratic nominee said last night that his speaking plans for the present were "up in the air." For Oct. 31 a big meeting is being planned at Madison Square Garden, New York, but the nominee said that he could not say yet whether he would attend. He will, however, on Nov. 2, review the parade in New York of college men supporting him.

The governor said his present inten- tion was to do no more speaking until Col. Roosevelt recovered.

Motor Cyclist's Narrow Escape.

Galt, Oct. 22.—Charles Fairbanks and a girl friend were motor cycling in Jackson Park, when the machine got beyond control and plunged ahead towards a gravel pit 20 feet deep. The riders hastily jumped and only just in time before the machine and chair shot into the pit.

The machine is a wreck and the girl suffered severe nervous shock.

Naval Construction at the Admiralty has been offered to Mr. E. H. Tennyson d'Eyncourt, who will build the super-dreadnoughts of the future.

The new director is the son of the late Mr. L. C. d'Eyncourt, of Market Rasen, Lincolnshire, who is remembered as a Metropolitan police magistrate. His younger brother is the Clerkenwell police magistrate, so that the family has more of a legal than a naval flavor.

Mr. Tennyson d'Eyncourt has been at Elswick for the past twenty years in the Naval Construction Department, hence he knows more than a little about building fighting ships. It is interesting to note that the Admiralty generally goes outside the service to obtain a chief constructor, and is especially impressed by the men at Elswick. Sir William White was brought from that shipyard in 1885, and in 1902 he was succeeded by Sir Philip Watts, another Elswick man, who in turn gives way to Mr. Tennyson d'Eyncourt.

This method of appointment has given rise to a deal of jealousy and ill-feeling inside the service, which the latest appointment has not allayed. But, looking at Mr. d'Eyncourt's past record and experience, there can be little doubt but that he will justify his appointment.

A Second Shock.

Lord Saye and Sele is the present head of one of the very old families in England, a family, by the way, noted for its dignity and exclusiveness.

The story goes that it was a member of this family who, once staggered her relatives at dinner one evening.

"Mother," she remarked casually, "I was married to-day."

Her mother, who would have regarded any display of emotion as an everlasting disgrace, controlled herself by a tremendous effort.

"My dear," she said coldly, "you might at least have waited till James had left the room."

James was the footman waiting at table.

"But it's James I've married," the young lady explained.

Miss Wylie Is Elusive.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—The question of the whereabouts of Miss Wylie, the suffragette, was settled yesterday afternoon, when it was found that when she left the Windsor Hotel, instead of going out of town, she merely went to a hotel that was less known, in the hope of avoiding the attention curious people have been devoting to her.

Miss Wylie said she would probably address a meeting here.

The next move is to be the formation of a boys' camp on the site of Ormond Market, at present a scene of mouldering walls, falling masonry, crooked lamp posts, huge heaps of stones, tin cans, and refuse of all kinds. Lady Aberdeen has secured it at a nominal rent. It is to be entirely cleared and made into a camp, where destitute boys from crowded homes will live and sleep, going by day to their work or their schools and returning in the evening to a veritable boy scout's paradise. The effect of a multiplication of such camps upon the questions of juvenile crime, hooliganism, and delinquency is surely self-evident.

A great deal has already been said and written about the tuberculosis campaign of the Women's Health Association of Ireland. People are fairly familiar with the propaganda of the association. They are aware that sanatoria have been constructed; that traveling health caravans tour all over Ireland, teaching the laws of health and hygiene to the people. The association also provides nurses for the treatment of consumptive patients in their homes under a system of voluntary notification.

As a result of the work, the death-rate from tuberculosis is the lowest recorded since 1864, when the registration of deaths was introduced.

An Exclusive Club.

It may be of special interest to Mr. Borden, to be informed that the Carlton Club, which so recently entertained him at dinner, is so exclusive an institution that it is owing to a very recent amendment in its constitution that it can welcome a visitor to refreshments within its portals. The explanation for his descent toward the popular, as given by the party journals, is that the Carlton intends to come into the open in the way of political fighting; and that resolve, which is might have surprised, would surely have pleased John Bright, who strongly deprecated its old accustomed methods of secret interference. Once, indeed, The People's Tribune put his opinion in picturesque form, when denouncing the abortive Derby-Disraeli Reform Bill in the House of Commons in the spring of 1859. The great orator depicted in glowing colors some party electioneering agent "emerging after dark from the Carlton Club, proceeding to a pillar letter-box which stands quite near it upon the opposite side of the street, and dropping into it some ten or twenty letters, while the unfortunate people in some small constituency are laboring under the delusion that they are carrying on a great constitutional contest. Unhappy men, they little know that the resistless locomotive engine has been set to work; that it is rushing down through county after county; and that somebody will be returned as their representative who has not the slightest sympathy with their interests." Those, of course, were the palmy days of "The Carlton Fund."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. earnest speaker, and has the faculty of putting his facts plainly and of holding the attention of his hearers. We cannot always agree with Mr. Rowell, politically, nor yet with some of his ideas for social reform, but though this be, it is an undeniable fact that public life in Ontario is the better for having in it men of the high moral and intellectual type of Mr. Rowell—honest men, decent men, if you will. We have many such men already, but there is plenty of room for more.

Edinburgh Castle.

During the work of research undertaken by a Royal Commission at Edinburgh Castle, Mr. W. T. Oldrieve, Scottish Director of Works, has made some valuable discoveries.

In the course of an examination of the vaulted casements under the south end of the Half-Moon Battery a shot hole was found on one of the walls, which showed that that wall must have been the outer wall. This led to the ground being opened up, and, the wall having been traced down for a distance of 33 feet, a vaulted chamber was found at the foot.

Thence a doorway led into another vaulted chamber not yet traced. The wall at this point is 8 feet thick, and undoubtedly Edwardian. Entering from the vaulted chamber, there seems to be another, but the excavations still remain to be completed.

A few feet from the inner barrier a passage has also been discovered, which may be identical with a sally port on the north side of the castle, known to exist in the seventeenth century. A few relics have been found, including a gold ornament and pieces of shell.

To Remember Livingstone.

A call is being issued to all the Protestant churches in Canada to appoint committees of arrangements next winter for a celebration of the centennial of the birth of David Livingstone. This takes place March 19, 1913. The great missionary work of Dr. Livingstone is to be a theme at the missionary meetings of the conventions. The celebrations will be world-wide. In Canada it will be under the auspices of the Canadian Council of the Laymen's Movement.

The call for the Livingstone celebration also calls for an anniversary meeting of the laymen's movement this month.

Sunday, Nov. 10, has been appointed as a day of prayer for missions throughout the Dominion.

Co-operative Shipping.

The Nova Scotia United Fruit Growers Association, which is a co-operative concern, is this year shipping at least half the apples grown in the Annapolis Valley. The first shipments were made about the middle of September. At least five steamers will be loaded at Annapolis before the end of the season. One fruit grower in the Valley, Mr. S. B. Chute, has an orchard of 220 acres. He says the crop prospects are splendid, though it will probably not equal the record crop of last year.

AMONG THE CANNIBALS

MISSIONARIES FROM AFRICA
TELL OF THE BANTUS.

They Are a Simple Childlike People
Among Whom Morality Is Non-Existent and Polygamy Is the General Rule—Wives Are Helpmeets and Also Profitable Investments——Sexes Are Equal.

Algot Lance, the explorer of the Brazilian jungle, is far from having a corner on recent information about cannibal tribes. Rev. A. L. Kitching, who, with his wife, spent ten years in the Teso country in East Africa, comes forward with a new book containing interesting descriptions of some of the most primitive tribes known to civilized man.

Mr. and Mrs. Kitching were the first white persons to invade the Teso country, and during their long mission they lived among savage blacks, many of whom were not far enough advanced in civilization to don as much clothing as the average Igorrote.

The native tribes Mr. Kitching found less childlike and blander than one would expect that so primitive would be. The theory that naked people are more moral than those who wear clothes, Mr. Kitching says, will not hold water. He writes:

In spite of the importance of marriage, and the efforts expended by many on acquiring the wherewithal to get a wife, there is no semblance of home life among Bantus; the wife is a mere chattel, to be acquired at considerable expense, and, therefore, to be made as profitable an investment as possible.

While the sexes in these savage tribes may be said to be on an equality, the question of "votes for women" does not arise because there are no votes for men. One main feature of this equality of the sexes, it may be cause or it may be an effect, is the fact that the men do the bulk of the hard work in cultivation.

In Buganda, with its regular rainfall and never-failing fertility, a minimum of labor is required to keep a household in food, when once a garden has begun to yield its regular crop of bananas, as the wife is able to make both ends meet with but a few hours a day in the fields.

Polygamy is practiced. The women like their husbands to have numerous wives, because it divides the work, so that when a polygamist's savage becomes a Christian, and faces the question of monogamy, he has not only to make up his own mind on the subject, but he must gain the consent of his wives. Wives are usually attained by purchase, though there are other ways. Mr. Kitching says:

"Big chiefs have many more wives than they actually marry themselves, and these are bequeathed to their sons after them, along with the other property. Sometimes it may happen that a young man inherits a wife much older than himself, in which case he may arrange with his brother to exchange for a younger woman, the elder brother then marrying the older woman.

"One of the most important Gan's chiefs, by name Ogwok, had a great number of wives of all ages. I was told that there was at least eighty, and I doubt if he knew himself how many children he had. He was constantly acquiring more wives, being very wealthy in cattle, but most of these were for his sons, who were naturally numerous, and many of them already grown up.

"In some districts girls are betrothed in infancy by their parents in order to secure the cattle or goats at once;
if the child dies, there is, of course,
unlimited litigation before the prospective bridegroom can recover his property. It is even said that a man will barter away his unborn child on the understanding that if it should prove to be a boy the payment shall be returned."

These savage tribes carry personal adornment to the most extreme point.
Many of them pierce their tongues for the purpose of inserting strings of rings or beads. How they eat with these burdens attached to their tongues can not be explained, unless they detach the ornaments at mealtime. We read on:

Patiko young men wear barbs of glass in the lower lips, but this need not interfere with mastication. All boys have a hole pierced in the lower lip at the age of six or seven, and they wear a bit of stick in the hole until able to procure an ornament.

"The custom was a rather useful one to us," records Mr. Kitching, "as it found us a splendid market for all our old bottles, which went at about eight pence apiece, or even more, according to the thickness and clear whiteness of the glass.

"Having succeeded in begging or purchasing a bottle, a youth takes it to the fire and heats it to the point of splitting; he then rakes out the pieces from the fire and selects those most suitable for his purpose. He will spend days sitting by a large, wet stone, laboriously grinding away at his strip of glass until he has it nicely smooth and tapered, either straight or curved will do; a nick is then rubbed at each side of the thick end, to hold in place a little band of brass wire, which serves to keep the glass from slipping out when pushed through the lip from inside."

Poisoning is one of the pleasant customs of East Africa. In Patiko, Mr.
Kitching was assured that not infrequently people died from contact with the lagaga; this is a poison trap set at the entrance of a village, and supposed to be such that only the person whose life or health is aimed at is in any danger of its virulence. The mere contact of the bare foot is sufficient to convey the poison, and no attempt is made to introduce any spike or sharp edge to cut the skin; the victim of the trap is expected to fall ill, and even die, without knowing the reason for his fate.

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—Mrs. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these

ECHOES FROM MACDONALD ELECTION IN MANITOBA

Ottawa, Oct. 18th.—It is altogether likely that the recent bye-election in MacDonald, Man., will prove a boomerang little to the taste of either the Borden administration or the Roblin government of the Province, both of which worked hand in glove to secure the election of Alexander Morrison, the Conservative candidate. There is scarcely any doubt that the election will be protested, and that when it comes before the courts there will be such a flood of testimony as to the manner in which the campaign was fought as will not merely upset the election, but reveal the Roblin and Borden administrations in a decidedly odious light.

Not merely this, but the very weight of the majority rolled up for Morrison by all sorts of devious methods has proven embarrassing to the Borden government. The manufacturers and everybody who has an axe to grind in the way of increased protection or resisting any reduction in the tariff, have used the result in MacDonald as an argument with which to try to club the government into granting all sorts of tariff favors. They declare that the contest was fought purely on the tariff question—the wider markets policy of the Liberals against the restrictive high tariff ideas of the Conservatives, and ever since the result has been announced their representatives have been active, looking for further favors at the expense of the producers and consumers. In its anxiety to cinch the election the government overleapt the mark and put a rod in pickle for its own back.

There was some slight idea throughout the country that extreme methods were being adopted to secure the defeat of the independent candidate when it became known that a number of his workers were being arrested and held on various quibbles without bail until after the election. The method was so drastic, and the excuses for holding the men seemed so disproportionate to their deprivation of liberty that people wondered what was going on.

Then the facts started to leak out, and it became known that the Borden-Roblin combination had a big force of all sorts of "detectives" and special constables of all degrees of rascality shadowing the Richardson workers, and, under various flimsy pretexts arresting such of them as seemed to be doing the most effective work. In fact Col. Gustave Boyer, M. P., a French speaker from Montreal, stated that he had been constantly shadowed by detectives throughout and had narrowly escaped arrest himself. He declared that the Roblin methods had reduced the country to a state of anarchy, and that to his knowledge a certain Justice of the Peace had filled out a number of warrants in blank, so that the name of any active Richardson worker could be inserted and an arrest made. In fact Mr. Boyer stated that one of these blank warrants had been filled in with his own name, but not executed.

A case in point, a fair sample of many similar ones, was the arrest of young Walkinshaw. He was a bright young man who had secured a good position at Winnipeg, and moved there from Ontario with his wife and children. Having a little time to spare he offered his services to the Richardson campaign for nothing, and did such excellent organization work that he success the Borden-Roblin combination resorted to a system of tactics which would have done Russia, and which evidently self felt, amongst the foreign of the riding, many of whom home lands had been too wretched to such domination.

Discussing this state of affairs locally the Winnipeg Free Press the public for it, stating that not exist unless Sir Rodmon had been aided in it by the public, who allowed it to bring themselves into the lazy such things could not exist in country. It says:

"This sluggishness of putment and the party madne makes men morally color political matters have made the steady degradation of our methods in this province have reached a pass which is able. Manitoba is no longer in which there is a free and expression of public opinion on the extent that it is restricted arbitrary methods, by perverted law and by corrupting agent province has ceased to be a democracy."

But at last the Roblin-Borden combination has overstepped it. Not only will the manner of MacDonald voters were corrupted bulldozed be shown in the courts, but it will inevitably lead into at next session of Parliament and Alexander Morrison will probably have some untimes in his seat trying to avplanation as to how he can usurp it.

Another sample of the Conservative government's facility for withdrawal from uncomfortable positions it has created for it shown this week in the final of the famous western lumber deal. Finding that no matter how it would come to hurt, either manufacturers or the consumer lumber, the government threw hands and dropped out of the it had started, leaving the American and Canadian lumbermen to out for themselves.

This was what is known as Lumber Case, and its story is long. Under the Laurier rule ruling was always given to 504" of the tariff, which provided the free admission of rough lumber. The Liberals held that a free tation of this clause was in terests of the settlers, as rough lumber was of great value to them in getting material shacks and barns as cheaply as possible.

Not so the Conservatives. as the Borden Government power a demand was made for a closer interpretation placed clause. The B. C. lumber claimed that the American men were evading the law they were sending in as timber article lumber sawn on three sized for use.

The Liberal Government had to listen to such representation that without such treatment lumber would have been of value to the settlers in whose interest clause was enacted into the law the Borden government saw opportunity to apply higher tariff, claimed that such lumber was whether the settler suffered The American lumbermen in changing their methods so that was no possibility of claiming of the tariff provisions.

Just previous to the Saskatchewan election the lumbermen of Columbia came back at the ment, and it seized the opportunity and gather in a few Saskatchewan

THE DOCTOR'S QUESTION

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders.

A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is "are your bowels regular?" He knows that ninety-eight per cent. of illness is attended with inactive bowels and torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.

Rekall Orderlies are a positive, pleasant and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great remedial value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Rekall Orderlies are eaten like candy, they act quickly and have a soothing, strengthening, healing influence on the entire intestinal tract. They do not purge, gripe cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea or other annoying effect. They are especially good for children, weak persons or old folks. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c. young Walkshaw. He was a bright young man who had secured a good position at Winnipeg, and moved there from Ontario with his wife and children. Having a little time to spare he offered his services to the Richardson campaign for nothing, and did such excellent organization work that he was honored with arrest at the behest of the Borden-Roblin hordes.

Reporting this amazing affair the Winnipeg Free Press says: "A warrant is secretly secured charging him—well, what is he charged with? Nobody knows. Immediately before the daily express reaches the town he is arrested, rushed on board the train and carried off in the night to Winnipeg. He is torn away from the locality where the circumstances attending his operations are known, where the witnesses, for him or against him live. In a word he is kidnapped. He arrives in Winnipeg late at night in charge of a constable. A lawyer who meets him at the station is forbidden to speak to him. He is hustled to the provincial jail. The following morning his lawyer calls at the jail and is permitted to see him, but before he has passed the time of day with him the young man is rushed from the room, thrown into a taxi-cab, hurried to the station and shipped off to Portage la Prairie jail. Kidnapped again! At Portage la Prairie, defenceless, unknown, he is arraigned immediately upon his arrival and remanded to jail until Saturday without bail. So far as known the only incriminating evidence adduced against him to date is the discovery in his pocket of a list of voters."

And this is not an isolated case. There were a number more, and probably others unreported, where men were arrested with no crime but that of working against the Borden-Roblin combination, and then illegally held so as to prevent them working until the election was over. Having found that their money could not ensure changing their methods so that there was no possibility of claiming of the tariff provisions.

Just previous to the Saskatchewan election the lumbermen of Columbia came back at the moment, and it seized the opportunity and gather in a few Saskatchewan votes by declaring that they not collect duty on such lumber suggested a test case. This was by the seizure of a consignment of "rough" lumber brought in duty by the Foss Company, once took action in the Exchequer Court for its recovery. Although evidence of many experts at the time was that such lumber dutiable the Conservative government counsel, Travers Lewis urged that it was manna beyond a point intended by 504, and this was sustained by Cassils, who held the lumber dutiable.

This probably both surprised and disappointed the government the appeal has been heard with obvious intention of upsetting Exchequer Courts decision, the government dropped out. Just time when they should have some interest in alleviating the ships of the western settlers washed their hands of the whole and retired, leaving the fight rival lumber interests.

THE CRISIS IN THE BORDEN GOVERNMENT

Ottawa, Oct. 18, 1912.—The breach existing in the Borden Cabinet has at last been openly proclaimed by the Government Organ and the resignation of one or more of the Ministers may be looked for at any moment. The following statements which appear in the Ottawa Citizen, this morning, the official mouthpiece of the Administration in the Capital and which has been telegraphed to other Conservative journals throughout the country, bears the imprint of having come direct from the Prime Minister's office as a means of preparing the public for further developments.

There has been much speculation on the subject of the naval policy of the Government and with regard to Hon. F. D. Monk's position. While no official statement can be procured it is understood that the position of affairs is substantially as follows: "Mr. Monk is convinced that the situation which confronts the Empire at this time is grave and even critical. But he is earnest and even insistent in his opinion that no assistance should be given by Canada, even as an emergency contribution, without referring the question to the people."

"There is good reason to believe that the latter view is not shared by the Prime Minister, who believes the situation demands immediate and effective aid."

This bears every ear mark of having been inspired by Premier Borden, and is couched in his favorite phraseology. It evidences the continual difficulty experienced by the coalition Conservative-Nationalist Cabinet in dealing with the naval and other questions, difficulties which for over a year have prevented the Borden Government from making any progress or enacting any useful legislation.

Indicently it strikingly proved the political prescience of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who during his recent tour of Ontario, unhesitating put his finger on the sore spot in Canada's affairs to-day. Wherever he spoke Sir Wilfrid unsparingly denounced the unholy alliance between the Conservatives with their strong Imperialistic Naval Policy and the Bourassa-Monk-Nantal-Pelletier Nationalist combination with their no navy, no contribution cry.

Day after day announcement of the opening of Parliament has been looked for but just as often has been put off till another day because the friction in the Cabinet steadily increased. It was hoped by the Conservative leaders that a compromise might have been effected and the Hon. Mr. Monk silenced by a judgeship. But it has become apparent that the Nationalist leader cannot be bought off in this way and resignations have therefore become the inevitable alternative.

It looks now as though Mr. Monk would insist on carrying out his Nationalist pledges of absolute opposition to any naval scheme without a reference to the people, even to the extent of publicity, taking this position in Parliament. What will happen then to Hon. Messrs. Pelletier and Nantal can only be conjectured, since they may prefer office to principle. What is now happening is an absolute confirmation of Laurier's humorous description of the Cabinet meeting—nothing done, everything quarrelled about.

During his Ontario tour Sir Wilfrid illustrated his criticism of the Nationalist-Conservative coalition Cabinet with the following imaginary description of a council meeting: Mr. Borden

MAIN PROVISIONS OF "THE ONTARIO STALLION ACT" AND REGULATIONS.

1. That each Stallion standing for service in Ontario must be enrolled with the Stallion Enrollment Board.
2. A certificate of each enrollment will be issued by the Board, which certificate must form the part of each newspaper advertisement or poster advertising the stallion.

3. At the option of the owner the stallion may be inspected by three officers appointed under the Act, and if such inspection is made, the report of the inspection will form a part of the record of enrollment and the Registration Certificate will be issued in accordance therewith.

4. The Board will fix the times and places at which stallions may be inspected; notice thereof will be given so that any person desiring to procure the inspection of a stallion may present him at the most convenient point.

5. For the purposes of the administration of the Act, a Pure Bred Stallion is considered to be one registered in one of the records affiliated with the Canadian National Live Stock Records or in case there is no such record for the breed, in one of the records recognized as authentic by the Record Board. A Grade Stallion is considered to be any other Stallion.

6. The following are considered diseases or malformations, as the case may be: Bone spavin; curb, when associated with a formation of hock which predisposes to curb; bog spavin, when associated with a formation of hock which predisposes to bog spavin; string-halt; side bone; roaring or whistling; peridic ophthalmia; and navicular disease.

7. Six forms of certificate will be issued to provide for the following conditions:

(a) Pure Bred, Inspected and approved.

(b) Pure Bred, Inspected, but found to be not free from malformations and diseases named in the regulations.

(c) Pure Bred, not inspected.

(d) Grade, inspected and found to be free from malformation and diseases named in the regulations.

(e) Grade, inspected, but found to be not free from malformations and diseases named in the regulations.

(f) Grade, not inspected.

8. Each enrollment must be renewed annually. In case of inspected stallions, however, the report of the Inspection Committee will hold good for two years.

9. When a Stallion is sold the transfer must be registered with the Board.

10. The fees to be paid to the board before the issue of any Certificate shall be:

For enrolment.....$ 2 00
For inspection..... 5 00
For renewal of enrolment..... 1 00
For transfer certificate..... 1 00

11. The penalty for contravention of any of the provisions of the Act will be not more than $100 nor less than $25.

12. The Act does not apply to the Provincial Judicial Districts nor to the Provisional County of Haliburton.
Dated October 2nd, 1912.

Let's hurry up and formulate our Naval Policy and get Parliament together as soon as possible."

Up jumps Hon. Mr. Monk and says, "Oh, no, we'll have no Naval Policy, no contribution."

Then follows Colonel the Hon. Sam Hughes and he says "But we must have Dreadnoughts and a contribution too. The people of Toronto and Ontario expect it, we all want it."

Mr. Monk, "But it was understood that nothing would be done without an appeal to the people."

And to this Col. Hughes replies "Why take chances on the people. Let's go ahead."

And finally, Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, weary of this endless bickering, rises and says, "Oh, well gentlemen, let's take up something else. We will deal with the naval matter to-morrow." And so it goes on day after day.

SUFFERERS FROM PILES!

ZAM-BUK HAS CURED THESE!

Friction on the hemorrhoid veins that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk applied at night will be found to give ease before morning. Thousands of persons have proved this. Why not be guided by the experience of others?

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say it has effected a complete cure."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, 183-185 St. Joseph Street, St. Roch, Quebec, P.Q., writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N. S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me."

Mr. William Kenty, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N. S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but everything I tried failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying various remedies, when I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. After a very short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for skin injuries and diseases, eczema, ulcers, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, chaps, cold sores, etc. 50c. box from all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations. Try Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

Coal, But No Gold.

After great hardships in the frozen north, Captain J. Barlett of the steamer Neptune of St. John's, Newfoundland, who headed a gold hunting expedition to Baffin Land, has returned, reporting the loss of one of his ships and the discovery of extensive coal deposits, but no gold.

The sealing steamer Algerine of the expedition was lost in Pond's Inlet. After she was crushed in the ice, the ship's company walked forty miles over the floes to land and found a cache left by Captain Bernier. For two weeks they subsisted in four crackers each per day, while they worked their way to Buiton Point, 70 degrees north latitude, where they were picked up by the Neptune. The party was unable to penetrate far into the interior owing to ice and unfavorable weather conditions.

Largest Bridge In Nova Scotia.

The Livingstone bridge, the longest bridge in Nova Scotia, and which spans Wallace Harbor, was formally opened for traffic recently. Nearly 3,000 people gathered to witness the interesting ceremony. The construction work was commenced in May, 1911, and was completed a few weeks ago. The bridge consists of seven spans in all, one 150 feet long, six 100 feet long, and a draw of 160 feet, making a total length of the steel work, with the abutments, of 771 feet. In addition to this the approaches are 2,200 feet long, making a grand total of 2,971 feet for the length of the bridge. The cost of the bridge, which was built by the local Government, was $65,000.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ended Oct. 19 were 2250 cattle, 2900 sheep and lambs, 3300 hogs and 725 calves. The supply on the market for sale this morning amounted to 1700 cattle, 1700 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 600 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was somewhat larger than a week ago, there was no important change in the condition of the market, owing to the fact that the quality of the stock was better and the percentage of common and inferior smaller. The gathering of buyers was large, but owing to the milder weather the trade was not as active as it should have been, as buyers generally only bought sufficient cattle to fill actual wants. A few small lots of choice picked steers sold as high as $6.50, but the bulk of the trading in this class was done at $6 to $6.25, and full carloads changed hands at $5.75 to $6.15 per 100 pounds. Some small lots of choice cows and heifers sold at $5.75 to $6, and a few bulls at $4.50 per 100 pounds.

The tone of the market for lambs was stronger, and prices showed an advance of 25c per 100 pounds since this day week, on account of the continued good demand from packers and butchers for supplies and an active trade was done, with sales of Ontario stock at $6 to $6.25, and Quebec at $5.75 per 100 pounds. There was no change in the market for sheep, but prices were firm at $3.75 to $4 for ewes per 100 pounds.

The demand for calves was good, and sales of milk-fed stock were made at 6c to 7c per pound. Hogs were stronger, and prices 25c to 35c per 100 pounds higher than a week ago, owing to the upward tendency of values in the west and the smaller supplies coming forward. The demand was good. Selected sold as high as $9.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.50; do., medium, $4.25 to $4.75; do., common, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2.50 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5 to $5.25; do., bulls, $3 to $4; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $70; springers, $55 to $65.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50. Lambs, $5.75 to $6.25.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9. Calves, $3 to $10.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Cattle—Receipts, 25,000; market, steady; beefs, $3.50 to $4; Texas steers, $4.40 to $5.75; western steers, $5.65 to $8.90; stockers and feeders, $4.20 to $7.40; cows and heifers, $2.80 to $7.00; calves, $6.50 to $9.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 33,000; market, weak, 10c lower; light, $8.25 to $9; mixed, $8.40 to $9.10; heavy, $8.35 to $9.10; rough, $8.45 to $8.60; pigs, $4.75 to $7.60; bulk of sales, $8.70 to $9.

Sheep—Receipts, 52,000; market, steady; native, $3.60 to $4.90; western, $3.85 to $4.70; yearlings, $4.75 to $5.90; lambs, native, $5.25 to $7.50; western, $5.60 to $7.40.

enough for us to live on."

"You might mortgage it for a small amount, just enough to buy a small place. The Allison farm of six acres is for sale at a very low price. John wants to go into chicken raising, and the property would just do. There is a cottage on it and a few old outhouses."

"But if I mortgage our farm who's to pay interest and provide a sinking fund for the principal?"

"John will do that."

"How?"

"By the profits on chicken raising."

"Suppose there are no profits?"

"Oh, pa, don't be stingy. We have but one daughter. You wouldn't grudge her a few thousand dollars out of all the money this farm's worth, would you?"

"My dear, we began on nothing and have had a hard struggle to get into our present comfortable fix. Let these young people begin as we did."

"And have as hard a time?"

"Better have a hard time when they are young than when they are old. No, I will not mortgage my farm even for Mandy, whom I love as well as you love her. That's settled."

Mrs. Bickford knew by a long experience that when her husband said "That's settled" it was settled. She went away with a sigh and told the youngsters that she had failed. Both mother and daughter voted Mr. Bickford a hard hearted man. John Williams said nothing. He had good pluck knowing that the older husband and father was cognizant of the fact, yet offered no help, barely spoke to him. The farmer had a hard time of it. His wife, too proud to grumble because he would not come forward with assistance, chose every other subject she could think of to show her spleen. Mandy seldom came to the house when her father was there, and if she did he failed to display any affection for him. John alone treated him with consideration. John learned rapidly by experience and told his wife, as he expressed it in his homely way, that he had "bit off a bigger end than he could chew." He kept his nerve, however, which, considering his youth, was no more than he should have done.

Then came a season in which the crops on the Bickford farm were larger than they had ever been before. It happened that there was a foreign war, and the price of grain was advanced enormously. When the year's profit was cleaned up the farmer found himself in possession of two average year's income instead of one. The sale of John's chicken farm was coming on, and Mrs. Bickford hoped that, considering her husband's good fortune, he would pay off the mortgage. He did not, and the property was sold.

"Wife," said Farmer Bickford one day in November, "what you going to do about Thanksgiving?"

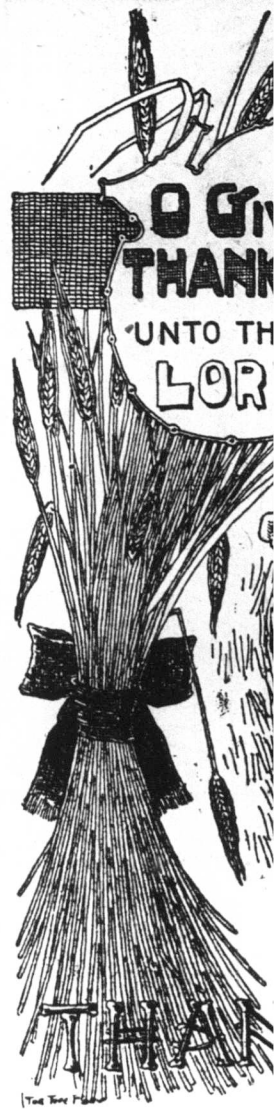

"Nothing. Nobody but you has anything to be thankful for."

"Well," said the farmer, unruffled, "John and Mandy have had a hard time of it this year. I'm not so mean as to grudge 'em a dinner and a good one. I expect they need it. Invite 'em here for Thanksgiving and get up the best dinner money will buy."

"Suppose they won't come?"

"They'll miss the dinner."

Mrs. Bickford and her daughter felt that they could not willingly sit down to a Thanksgiving dinner with so stingy a husband and father. John urged them to accept, and when he found their resolution fixed not to do

MARRIAGE LICENSES

John's settled it was settled. She went away with a sigh and told the youngsters that she had failed. Both mother and daughter voted Mr. Bickford a hard hearted man. John Williams said nothing. He had good pluck, but little or no experience. He went to a bank and arranged for a mortgage for $3,000 on the Allison farm, then bought it for $3,400. He had saved $200 and trusted to luck to raise the other $200 with which to complete the payment. Mrs. Bickford had saved $100 out of pin money and prevailed on her husband to give $100 in lieu of a wedding present, though she did not tell him what use was to be made of it. John and Mandy were married and took possession of their farm. Mr. Bickford was left to find out their ownership of the place by their going into it. They did not deign to mention the matter to him. This was the work of the mother and daughter. John had nothing to do with it.

John worked for the neighboring farmers, intending to save money out of his wages to stock his farm with chickens, but the crops happened to be poor that season, and he got nothing over a bare living. The next season was better, but the baby came, and the coming of a baby always involves extra expense. At the end of two years John had not stocked his chicken farm and had got behind with his interest.

Mrs. Bickford would have appealed to her husband, but from the time Mandy was married the farmer became more economical than ever, and she dared not mention the matter. Besides, she and Mandy had shown their resentment that he had not mortgaged his farm to give the young couple a start, and this was another reason why he was not applied to. However, Mrs. Bickford at this juncture condescended to inform him of the fact that the young couple were in trouble.

The chicken farm, on which as yet there were no chickens, was advertised for sale under foreclosure of mortgage. Then Mrs. Bickford and her daughter, that they could not willingly sit down to a Thanksgiving dinner with so stingy a husband and father. John urged them to accept, and when he found their resolution fixed not to do so declared that he would dine with his father-in-law without them. Mrs. Bickford prepared the dinner and then went over to her daughter, who was still on the chicken farm, the two intending to have a dinner by themselves.

"Tell him," said Mrs. Bickford to John, "that as all our daughter can afford is tea and toast I shall share it with her."

John set off to his father-in-law's. He had not been there long before he returned to his house and protested earnestly that his mother-in-law and his wife were acting unwisely and unnaturally.

John was head of his family, and his wife succumbed and consented to go with him. As Mrs. Bickford did not care to remain away alone both went to the Bickford farm and all sat down to table.

"I've chosen Thanksgiving day," said the farmer, "to end a family feud. John's exploit has ended just where I believed it would and has been a failure. Nevertheless from the time he was married I resolved to save what money he would sink, for I knew he would need it in the end. I got together half the amount needed to pay cash for the farm before this last crop was marketed, and now I have the whole. I intended to buy the farm for you, Mandy; but, seeing your husband learns faster than you, I've bought it for him."

He threw on the table a deed to the chicken farm made out to John Williams.

"Why, I thought Lawyer Groat bought the chicken farm," exclaimed Mrs. Bickford.

"So he did—for me."

Mandy sprang into her father's arms. "It wasn't John's fault that he failed," the farmer went on. "It was the fault of his inexperience. I admired his pluck, but determined to let him benefit by the experience. The harvesting of this last crop has been too much for an old man like me, and I'm going to turn over the details of its management to him. But, as I believe no house is big enough for two families, you children are to remain at the chicken farm, using it for a home and nothing more. Does that suit you, John?"

John grasped the farmer's hand, while Mandy clung to his neck. Mrs. Bickford scarcely found room to give her husband a kiss. Then, after a normal condition was attained, they began to discuss the best dinner that money could buy.

Visitors in that region are puzzled at the name "Chicken Farm," given to one of the prettiest places there, since it is nothing like a farm, and there are no chickens on it. Occasionally an inquirer gets the story of how it gained its singular name.

- The - Lament of a Doomed Turkey

By P. J. TANSEY.

[Copyright, 1906, by P. J. Tansey.]

HE poultry pen was full of grief. A deep though silent sorrow pervaded all the turkey group— Their sire must die the morrow.

He paced the coop in thoughtful mood, Nor stooped for bug or barley; His mien forbade in poultrydom The sympathizing parley.

But soon he raised his head on high And spread his fan of feathers And strutted forth as proudly there As boys in patent leathers.

Then, having made a fine parade In stately ostentation, He called his offspring up to hear His dying exhortation:

"My children, see the wage of greed— A prospect very murky. I'd be insurance risk today Were I less gobbling turkey.

"I robbed the gander of his grub; I cheated orphan chickens; I call up many a dastard steal That now my gizzard sickens.

BISHOP APOSTLES A COSTLY MISTAKE

Pope Now Sees Error---Directing Faith Back to Apostles.

All Followers of Christ Repudiating Apostolic Succession Now Have Proper Basis for Harmony and Union Through Untrammelled Bible Study.

St. Louis, Oct. 20.—We report one of Pastor Russell's discourses here to-day from the text, "Have not I chosen you Twelve?" (John 6:70.) The Pastor declared that shortly after the Apostles had fallen asleep in death Satan got great power in the Church, using two instrumentalities to introduce false doctrines.

(1) By the Second Century the ministers of the Church began to be recognized as separate from the congregations, and instead of being elected as their servants, they established themselves as a clerical class and began to lord it over the household of faith, themselves appointing the ministers over the congregations, instead of their being chosen by election, as in the days of the Apostles.

(2) At the same time the chief ones of the clergy, having the title of bishops, were claimed to be the successors of the Apostles, with the same right to teach and to be considered infallible messengers of Christ. The doctrine of Apostolic Succession was formulated. They pointed out that when Judas lost his place amongst The Twelve, the eleven met and chose one to fill his place.

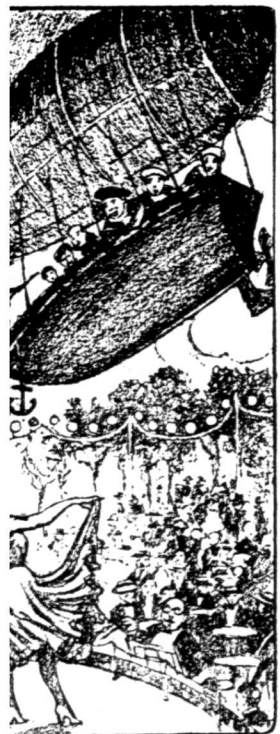

The speaker called attention to the fact that the eleven Apostles in electing Matthias to their number in the place of Judas, did it without Divine authority and sanction. The one they chose the Lord ignored, and we hear nothing further of him. In His own due time the Lord brought forward the one He purposed should take the place of Judas—St. Paul.

Jesus assured these Twelve that they would "sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel," in the "Times of Restitution" and "Regeneration." (Matt. 19:26; Acts 3:19-21.) Those Twelve were again pictured symbolically in Revelation as the crown of twelve stars, on the head of the symbolical Woman, who represented the Church of Christ. Again The Twelve are pictured in the symbolic New Jerusalem, which portrays the Church beyond the veil in Heavenly glory, as twelve foundation stones, for their names written therein.—Rev. 21:14.

False or Pseudo-Apostles.

Of these Twelve alone Jesus said, "Whosoever things ye bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven and whatsoever things ye shall declare loosed," or non-essential on earth shall be declared "loosed in Heaven"—so carefully would the great Head supervise the words of those, who as His specially appointed and chosen ones, were His mouthpieces to the Church. With St. Paul we can then agree history, as the ex-president's speech, when a boy in the World's Wireless Telegraphy handed me a green en-veloped "Rush." It was a messenger agent at Peary, where our company had an instrument the north pole capable of operating without relay any message-receiving instrument on top of the pole. found any 'gigantic engineering,' so without waiting for the colossal statue of Taft we loaded to the Panama hats and mosquito spread sail for the pole. We de New York in twenty-four flying good weather and faded all the way and passed city some time before mid-spring for an hour over a roof here they had the best show. There was one girl in pink as I was saying, we had good and favorable winds, and light we sighted the citadel. There our trouble begun. We went the northwest and hung a chair all day, monkeying with machinery and cursing our luck. The mate pipes up: "er, do you realize what day stuff aboard. Of course the canned stuff's all right, now that the whole regular army is on duty at the packing houses, but canned turkey don't seem 'Thanksgiving-like. Besides, we ain't got any canned turkey, come to think of it—only canned peas and punkin'.

"Well, I tell you, sir, I was stumped. I never in all my life went over a Thanksgiving without turkey, not even that trip when we was captured by the Chinese air junk. Of course the turkey them air pirates give us was really golden pheasant, but we called it turkey, and it tasted all right. And I knew if the crew ever got on to the fact that it was Thanksgiving and we didn't have anything but hard tack and canned peas and punkin to give 'em there would be the worst mutiny since the one on the Pamayat Azova, when the czar tried to make his sailors eat icons. I kept all hands hard at work, so they wouldn't get time to think about the almanac, and we was moseying along slow, me figuring on whether some other skipper would have the pole market for panamas oversold before we got there, when suddenly the mate pipes up again, 'Skipper, I've got an idee.'

"'Spit it out,' says I, but he never answers, but grabs his spyglass and begins rubbering at something way off our port bow. Then he runs below and comes up with one of them durn automobile 'honk-honks' in his hand. We got that 'honk-honk' in a funny way. We was flying low one day, watching two big machines racing along a country road, when all at once one of 'em blows up and the horn lands right in our car. Well, the mate leans over the port rail and begins 'honk-honking' like he was dippy. All at once I hear another 'honk-honk' way off, then nearer, then more 'honks' than all the automobiles in four states could make. And what do you think it was? Wild geese. Dern my dynamo, if there wasn't a cannon with geese flying toward us in a long 'V,' 'dragging their harrer over the pale moon,' as the poet says, only there wasn't any moon, it being broad daylight. I call all hands to the main deck, and we man the rail. Closer and closer come the geese until I begin to get scared that they're going to hit our balloon and puncture us. Just as they get up to us I grab the feller that's leading the 'V' and holler. Everybody grabs a goose and hollers. That scares the rest and off they fly, leaving a bird in every man's hand, which was worth two in the ozone, as the saying is.

"We was drifting northwest all this time, and by the time we had skinned and dressed the geese we was right over some hot springs up in British Columbia. Every man got out a line and tied it around a goose's neck and dropped him into the water. When the geese was cooked we drew 'em up again, and, by the everlasting Santos-Dumont, that boiled goose was the tenderest, most succulent meat I ever tasted. What with the canned punkin pie, the peas and some wild celery we fished up with

Horsetail's Banquet

Impromptu Thanksgiving Dinner and What It Did to His Band.

"Ugh!" grunted the big Navajo chief. "White man's Thankgive; him eat heap; Injun stay hungry; no big eat for Injun."

Spotted Horsetail was sad and sore. Three hundred braves were in his camp, with many squaws and papooses—all hungry. Those who know anything about Indians know that Indians are always hungry. And now it was the white man's Thanksgiving day, as the railroad agent (the entire population) at Broken Ridge had informed the chief. Excepting Uncle Sam's salt pork and canned beans there was little to eat on the reservation. Spotted Horsetail was disgusted.

"Whoop! Hiy-yi!" yelled three young braves, riding in at a wild gallop from the railroad. Their faces were smeared with what an eastern tenderfoot would have called war paint, but in truth it was California raspberry jam, orange marmalade, molasses and other sweets.

"Heap big eat!" yelled the riders. "White man's dinner!"

In three minutes every buck Navajo was mounted and off toward the railroad, followed by the women and children afoot. Near Broken Ridge a loose rail had thrown ten freight cars off the track. Each car was loaded with the delicious fruits, fresh and canned, of southern California, bound for the east. When the cars rolled down the embankment they broke open.

Spotted Horsetail's band gulped down whole cans of strawberry preserves. They fished into big tins of sugary peaches and swallowed the fruit whole, like large raw oysters. They drank the maple sirup as if it were firewater, and the raspberry jam went the way of all sweets. Whole bottles of olive oil added to the turmoil in their stomachs.

By nightfall 267 Indians were stretched upon the Arizona sod, out of commission. They were exceedingly sick at the stomach. An ambulance train from the nearest division town summoned by the Broken Ridge agent by wire brought a score of doctors.

And every day for six weeks thereafter came Spotted Horsetail and a squad of braves, who sat silently alongside the railroad track from dawn to dusk. Finally a freight train slowed up one day, and the head brakeman held council with the chief.

"No use, Spotted," he said. "We give this dinner only once a year—Thanksgiving day."

or non-essential on earth shall be declared "loosed in Heaven"—so carefully would the great Head supervise the words of those, who as His specially appointed and chosen ones, were His mouthpieces to the Church.

With St. Paul we can then agree that no additional instruction would be necessary beyond what God thus gave us. The Apostle Paul said, "The word of God is sufficient, that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished." (II. Tim. 3:15-17.) Consequently, whatever visions and revelations of pseudo-apostles, or whatever decrees of pseudo-apostles, may come to us, they are to be considered as merely human—not inspired—that our faith may not rest in the teachings of men, but in the Word of God. —I. Cor. 2:5.

The Emperor Constantine, a convert to Christianity, noted that the teachings of the various bishops were quite contradictory. Although not baptized he recognized that if these teachers were Divinely guided their testimony would be harmonious. He thought to institute a comparison of their teachings with the Bible and to prove them right or wrong by its testimony.

Constantine, in A. D. 325, convened the Council of Nice—called an "Apostolic Council," because the bishops were thought to be living apostles. Although Emperor Constantine proffered transportation free, only about one-third of the bishops attended—385. The imperial order was that the Apostles must decide what must be believed and taught.

For days, weeks and months disputes prevailed; and finally the Emperor gave the decision respecting the wording of the Creed. And that Nicene Creed was promulgated as the Christian Faith; and the edict went forth that all who would not accept it should be banished. Thus uniformity of faith was effected by a worldly prince, who probably never saw, nor once referred to the Divine Word, the Bible.

For twelve centuries after this, Apostolic Succession continued operating through "Apostolic Councils" and creeds. Is it any wonder that in all those fifteen centuries the Truth itself was buried under a mass of superstition, error, false doctrine?

Bible the Torch of Progress.

For four centuries the Bible has been coming back to the people. Proportionately liberty has been enlightening the world. Ignorance, superstition and persecution have been yielding to nobility and justice. We all praise God that we live in a day when it is no longer considered God-like, Christlike, to persecute others!

But, alas! for the past fifty years the influence of the Bible is on the wane! Infidelity, styled Higher Criticism, is rapidly undermining all faith in the Bible.

London's Extremes.

London is the richest city in the world, and her slums are the most disgraceful.

A Grim Superstition.

A curious superstition prevails in Morocco. If a man has a grudge against another he procures some human bones and grinds them into fine flour which he mixes with his enemy's bread or other food. It is universally believed that the man who eats this horrible compound will begin to fade away and eventually die.

Juggling With the Language.

Scott-Jones says that he cleared between five and six hundred on that stock deal of his. I wonder if it's so?

Mott—Oh, yes, he made between $5 and $600. The exact amount, I believe, was $8.75.

2,000 livres! I could manage it with economy, I could manage it with 2,000 livres."

"What," cried she, "2,000 livres! Why, that is a fortune!"

Porthos made a most significant grimace. Mme. Coquenard understood it.

"I should like to know the details," said she, "because, having many relations in business, I was almost sure of obtaining things at 100 per cent less than you could get them yourself. For instance, don't you, in the first place, want a horse?"

"Yes, a horse."

"Well, then, I can just suit you."

"Ah," said Porthos, brightening, "that's well as regards my horse, then. But I must have the horse appointments complete, which are composed of objects that a musketeer alone can purchase and which will not amount, besides, to more than 800 livres."

"Three hundred livres! Then put down 800 livres," said the procureuse, with a sigh.

Porthos smiled. It may be remembered that he had the saddle which came from Buckingham. The 800 livres then he reckoned upon putting snugly into his pocket.

"Then," continued he, "there is a horse for my lackey and my valise. As to my arms, it is useless to trouble you about them. I have them."

"A horse for your lackey?" resumed she, hesitatingly. "But that is doing things in a very noble style, my friend."

"Well, madame," said Porthos haughtily, "do you take me for a beggar?"

"No, no! I only thought that a pretty mule made sometimes as good an appearance as a horse, and it seemed to me that by getting a pretty mule for Mosqueton—"

"Well, agreed for a pretty mule," said Porthos. "You are right. I have seen very great Spanish nobles whose whole suit were mounted on mules. Then there remains the valise."

"Oh, don't let that disturb you!" cried Mme. Coquenard. "My husband has five or six valises. You shall choose the best."

"Ah, but the valise I want," cried Porthos, "is a well filled one, my dear!"

Madame uttered fresh sighs. In short, the rest of the equipment was successively debated in the same manner, and the result of the sitting was that Mme. Coquenard should give 800 livres in money and should furnish the horse and the mule which should have the honor to carry Porthos and Mosqueton to glory.

These conditions being agreed to, Porthos took leave of Mme. Coquenard. The latter wished to detain him by darting certain tender glances, but Porthos urged the commands of duty, and the lawyer's wife was obliged to give place to the king.

The musketeer returned home as hungry as a hunter.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Maid and Mistress.

IN the meantime, in spite of the cries of his conscience and the wise counsels of Athos, D'Artagnan became hourly more in love with milady. Thus he never failed to pay his diurnal court to her, and the self satisfied Gascon was convinced that sooner or later she could not fail to respond to him.

Kitty guessed what was passing in the mind of the young man and heaved a deep sigh.

"You love my mistress, then, very dearly, M. le Chevalier?" said she.

"Oh, more than I can say, Kitty! I am mad for her."

"Alas, monsieur?" said she. "That is a great pity."

"What do you see so pitiable in it?"

"Because, monsieur," replied Kitty,

"my mistress does not love you at all. What do you think of this?"

And Kitty drew a little note from her bosom.

"For another?"

"Yes."

"His name, his name!" cried D'Artagnan.

"Read the address."

"M. le Comte de Wardes."

The remembrance of the scene at St. Germain presented itself to the mind of the presumptuous Gascon. As quick as thought he tore open the letter in spite of the cry which Kitty uttered on seeing what he was going to do, or, rather, what he was doing. He read:

You have not answered my first note. Are you indisposed or have you forgot the glances you favored me with at the ball of Mme. de Guise? You have an opportunity now, count; do not allow it to escape.

D'Artagnan became very pale; he was wounded in his self love; he thought that it was in his love.

"Poor, dear M. D'Artagnan!" said Kitty, in a voice full of compassion and pressing the young man's hand again.

"You know what it is to be in love!" said D'Artagnan, looking at her for the first time with much attention.

"Alas, yes."

"Well, then, instead of pitying me, you would do much better to assist me in revenging myself of your mistress."

"And what sort of revenge would you take?"

"I would triumph over her and supplant my rival."

"I will never help you in that, M. le Chevalier."

"Why not?"

"My mistress will never love you."

"How do you know that?"

"You have offended her to the very heart."

"If in what can I have offended her? I, who ever since I have known her have lived at her feet like a slave! Speak, I beg of you!"

"I will never confess that but to the man who should read to the bottom of my soul."

D'Artagnan looked at pretty Kitty for the second time.

"Kitty," said he, "I will read to the bottom of your soul whenever you like; don't let that disturb you." And he gave her a kiss, at which the poor girl became as red as a cherry.

"Oh, no," said Kitty, "it is not me you love! It is my mistress you love. You told me so only just now."

"And does that hinder you from telling me the second reason?"

"The second reason, M. le Chevalier," replied Kitty, emboldened by the kiss in the first place and still further by the expression of the eyes of the young man, "is that in love—every one for herself!"

Then only D'Artagnan saw at a glance all the advantage that might be derived from the love which Kitty had just confessed so innocently or so boldly—the interception of letters addressed to the Count de Wardes, intelligences on the spot, entrance at all hours into Kitty's chamber, which was contiguous

"Well," said milady, "I have not seen our Gascon this evening."

"What, milady, has he not been?" said Kitty. "Can he be inconstant before being happy?"

"Oh, no; he must have been prevented by M. de Treville or M. Dessessart. I understand my game, Kitty. I have him safe!"

"What will you do with him, madame?"

"What will I do with him? Oh, Kitty, there is something between that man and me that he is quite ignorant of. He was very near making me lose my credit with his eminence. Oh, I will be revenged for that!"

"I thought madame loved him?"

"I love him? I detest him! A simple fool who held the life of Lord de Winter in his hands and did not kill him, by which I missed 800,000 livres a year!"

"That's true," said Kitty; "your son was the only heir of his uncle, and until his coming of age you would have had the enjoyment of his fortune."

"For all this," continued milady, "I should long ago have revenged myself on him if—and I don't know why—the cardinal had not requested me to conciliate him."

"Oh, yes; but madame has not favored the little woman he was so fond of!"

"What, the messenger's wife of the Rue des Fosseurs? Has he not already forgotten she ever existed? That will do. Go into your own room, and tomorrow endeavor again to obtain me an answer to the letter I gave you."

D'Artagnan heard the door close, then the noise of two bolts by which milady fastened herself in on her side, but as softly as possible, Kitty turned the key of the lock, and then D'Artagnan opened the closet door.

"Silence, silence! Begone!" whispered Kitty. "There is nothing but a wainscot between my chamber and milady's. Every word that is uttered in one can be heard in the other."

"I will go—later." And he put his arm around her waist. D'Artagnan's love for Kitty was little more than an idea of vengeance upon milady. The first use he made of the influence he had obtained over her was to endeavor to find out what had become of Mme. Bonacieux. But the poor girl swore that she was entirely ignorant on that head, her mistress never admitting her into half her secrets, only she believed she was able to say she was not dead.

As to the cause which was near making milady lose the confidence of the cardinal, Kitty knew nothing about it. But this time D'Artagnan was better informed than she was. As he had seen milady on board a vessel at the moment he was leaving

England, he suspected that it was almost without a doubt on account of the diamond studs.

But what was clearest in all this was that the true hatred, the profound hatred, the inveterate hatred of milady was increased by his not having killed her brother-in-law.

The next evening after having left milady he found Kitty at the gate and, as on the preceding evening, went up to her chamber. Kitty had been accused of negligence and consequently severely scolded. Milady could not at all comprehend the silence of the Count de Wardes, and the gold and forgot that he came to announce D'Artagnan. Now, as D'Artagnan used no ceremony with Aramis, seeing that Bazin forgot to announce him, he announced himself.

"My dear Aramis," said D'Artagnan, "are these the prunes that are sent to you from Tours?"

"You are mistaken, friend D'Artagnan," said Aramis, always on his guard. "This is from my bookseller, who has just sent me the price of that poem in one syllable verse which I began yonder."

"Ah," said D'Artagnan, with a smile, "you sell your productions at their weight in gold; you are very fortunate, my friend, but take care or else you will lose that letter which is peeping out from your doublet and which comes, no doubt, from your bookseller likewise?"

"My dear D'Artagnan," said Aramis; "if you please, we will join our friends. As I am rich, we will today begin to dine together again, expecting that you will be rich in your turn."

Having put two or three double pistols into his pocket to answer the calls of the moment, Aramis placed the others in an ebony box, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, in which he kept the famous handkerchief, which served him as a talisman.

The two friends repaired to Athos' dwelling, and he, faithful to his vow of not going out, took upon him to order dinner to be brought to them.

They went to find Porthos, and at the corner of the Rue Bac met Mousqueton, who, with a most pitiable air, was driving before him a mule and a horse.

D'Artagnan uttered a cry of surprise, which was not quite free from joy.

"There's my yellow horse, Aramis!" cried he. "Upon that very horse I came to Paris."

"It is of a singular color," said Aramis. "I never saw one with such a hide in my life."

"I can well believe you did not," replied D'Artagnan, "and that was how I got 8 crowns for him. It must have been for his hide, for the carcass is not worth 18 livres. But how did this horse come into your hands, Mousqueton?"

"Pray," said the lackey, "say nothing about it, monsieur. It is a frightful trick played us by the husband of our duchess."

"How has it come about, Mousqueton?"

"Why, we are looked upon with a rather favorable eye by a lady of quality, the Duchess of —; but, your pardon. My master has commanded me to be discreet. She had forced us to accept as a little keepsake a magnificent Spanish horse and an Andalusian mule, which were beautiful to look upon. The husband heard of the affair. On their way he seized the two magnificent beasts which were being sent to us and substituted these horrible animals in their places."

"Which you are taking back to him, I suppose?" said D'Artagnan.

"Exactly so, monsieur," replied Mousqueton.

"No; though I should like to have seen Porthos upon my yellow horse. Is he at home?"

"Yes, monsieur," said Mousqueton, "but in a very ill humor. Go on!" And he continued his way toward the

New Brunswick, Canada. — "I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me." — Mrs. DEVERE BARBOUR, Harvey Bank, New Brunswick, Canada.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

ing so fondly anticipated by both Porthos and D'Artagnan. Athos sat chewing the cud of recollection, in which the bitter somewhat predominated over the sweet, when his meditations were pleasingly interrupted by the appearance of D'Artagnan. We say pleasingly because Athos took particular pleasure in the society of the frank, shrewd Gascon.

As to the Gascon, he was in exuberant spirits, but spirits which to the cool, observant eye of Athos seemed rather feverish than natural.

"This seems to have been an auspicious night with you, D'Artagnan," said Athos. "Did you visit your fascinating Englishwoman?"

"Oh, yes," replied D'Artagnan, rubbing his hands, "and my revenge is complete. I will tell you all, and then you may judge for yourself." And with his usual readiness and fluency the Gascon related to his attentive friend the adventures of the evening.

In the first place he recapitulated all that our readers know concerning the lady's warm letters to De Wardes and D'Artagnan's forged reply. At this period Athos' brow became clouded.

"But proceed," added he gravely.

aware of his doing so," and her voice was agitated as she spoke. What the latter part of her speech meant I don't know, but she is full of mysteries. The ring is, as you see, a magnificent sapphire, surrounded by brilliants. She added:

"Poor dear angel, whom the monster of a Gascon was so near killing. Do you suffer much from your wounds?"

"Yes, a great deal," said I. "Be satisfied," murmured she. "I will avenge you and cruelly."

"Whew!" thought I to myself, "the time for confidence has not yet come!" At our parting another interview was agreed upon for next week."

"Your milady is doubtless an infamous creature. But, since you mentioned it, my attention has been engrossed by your ring," said Athos. "It reminds me of a family jewel. I did not think two sapphires of such a fine water existed. And she gave you that ring, do you say?"

"Yes, my beautiful Englishwoman, or, rather, Frenchwoman, for I am sure she was born in France, took it from her own finger and forced it on to mine."

"Pray," said Athos after a minute, "either take off that ring or turn the collet inside. It recalls such recollections that I cannot keep my head cool enough to converse with you. But stop, let me look at that ring again. The one I mentioned to you had one of its faces scratched."

D'Artagnan took off the ring, giving it again to Athos.

Athos started. "Look," said he, "is it not strange?" and he pointed out to D'Artagnan the scratch he had remembered.

"But from whom did this ring come to you, Athos?"

"From my mother, who inherited it from her mother."

"And you—sold it?" asked D'Artagnan hesitatingly.

"No," replied Athos, with a singular smile, "I gave it away in a love affair, as it has been given to you."

D'Artagnan took back the ring, but put it into his pocket and not on to his finger.

"D'Artagnan," said Athos, taking his hand, "you know I love you. If I had a son I could not love him better. Take my advice, renounce this woman."

"You are right," said D'Artagnan. "I have done with her, she terrifies me."

Athos bowed to D'Artagnan, like a man who wishes to be left alone with his thoughts.

On reaching home D'Artagnan found Kitty waiting for him. She was sent by her mistress to the false De Wardes. Her mistress was mad with love; she wished to know when her lover would meet her again. The counsels of his friend, joined to the cries of his own heart, made him determine, now his pride was saved and his vengeance satisfied, not to see milady again. As a reply he wrote the following letter:

Do not depend upon me, madame, for the next meeting. Since my convalescence I have so many affairs of this kind on my hands that I am forced to regulate them a little. When your turn comes I shall have the honor to inform you of it. I kiss your hands. DE WARDES.

Not a word about the ring. D'Artagnan gave the open letter to Kitty, who at first was unable to comprehend it, but who became almost wild with joy on reading it a second time. She ran back to the Place Royale.

seen Porthos upon my yellow horse. Is he at home?"

"Yes, monsieur," said Mousqueton. "but in a very ill humor. Go on!" And he continued his way toward the Quai des Grands Augustins, while the two friends went to ring at the bell of the unfortunate Porthos. He, having seen them crossing the yard, took care not to answer, and they rang in vain.

In the meanwhile Mousqueton continued on his way, and, crossing the Pont Neuf, still driving the two sorry animals before him, he reached the street where dwelt the lawyer and his wife. When arrived there he fastened, according to the orders of his master, both the horse and mule to the knocker of the attorney's door. Then without taking any heed of their future fate he returned to Porthos and told him that his commission was completed.

In a short time the two unfortunate beasts, who had not eaten anything since the morning, made such a noise with the knocker that the lawyer ordered his boy to go and inquire in the neighborhood to whom this horse and mule belonged.

Mme. Coquenard recognized her present and could not at first comprehend this restitution, but the visit of Porthos soon enlightened her. The anger which fired the eyes of the musketeer, in spite of his efforts to suppress it, terrified his sensitive lover. Porthos went away after having appointed a meeting with the woman in the cloisters of St. Magloire. The husband, seeing he was going, invited him to dinner, an invitation which the musketeer refused with an air of majesty.

Mme. Coquenard repaired trembling to the cloisters of St. Magloire, for she guessed the reproaches that awaited her there, but she was fascinated by the lofty airs of Porthos.

All that which a man wounded in his self love could let fall in the shape of imprecations and reproaches upon the head of a woman Porthos let fall upon her bowed head.

"Alas," said she, "I did all for the best. One of our clients is a horse-dealer. I took the mule and the horse for what he owed us. He assured me that they were two noble steeds!"

"Well, madame," said Porthos, "if he owed you more than 5 crowns your horse dealer is a thief."

And Porthos, turning on his heel, made a step to retire.

She hung herself upon the arm of Porthos and in the violence of her grief cried out:

"M. Porthos, I am ignorant of all such matters. I have done wrong, but I will repair that wrong, upon my word of honor I will!"

"And how will you do that?" asked the musketeer.

"Listen to me. This evening M. Coquenard is going to the house of M. le Duc de Chauvines, who has sent for him. It is upon a consultation, which will last three hours at least. Come, we shall be alone and can make up our accounts."

"Ah, now that is speaking to the purpose, my dear!"

"You pardon me, then?"

"We shall see," said Porthos majestically.

And they separated, both saying, "Till this evening."

On the morning following the even-in the first place ne recapitulated an that our readers know concerning the lady's warm letters to De Wardes and D'Artagnan's forged reply. At this period Athos' brow became clouded.

"But proceed," added he gravely.

"Well, I perceived my billet had done its work. At 10 o'clock milady began to be uneasy. She arose, walked about, sat down again, her eyes seeming constantly to reproach the sluggish progress of the pendulum. At length, as the time drew near, there was no mistaking her. Her looks said distinctly as words, 'You have been very agreeable, but it is quite time you were gone.' I arose, took my hat, bowed upon her hand, even ventured to kiss it, all which she not only allowed, but I was astonished to find her beautiful fingers return the respectful pressure of mine. And yet, though the fascination still continued, I was not for a moment deceived. There was no partiality for me, not even coquetry in it. 'She must love him,' thought I as I descended the stairs.

"But my poor little Kitty could not find it in her heart to come down to meet me. I was obliged to grope my way up the back staircase alone. "On reaching the girl's little apartment I found her seated with her head leaning on her hands, weeping bitterly. Milady, in the delirium of her joy, had revealed to her the contents of the supposed De Wardes' billet and had given her a purse of money.

"Kitty on regaining her chamber had thrown this purse contemptuously into a corner, where it lay, disgorging three or four pieces of gold.

"From some little remains of modesty, milady had ordered all the lights to be lowered, even in her own chamber, and M. de Wardes was to depart before day in darkness.

"I had not been many minutes with Kitty before we heard milady enter her chamber, and I quickly ensconced myself in my closet; indeed, Kitty had scarcely pushed me in, when her mistress' little bell rang.

"A few minutes before the appointed hour milady had the lights in her chamber dimmed and dismissed Kitty to hers, with an injunction to introduce the count the moment he arrived.

"I was at the door of milady's chamber before Kitty had closed it. "What is that noise?" said milady.

"It is I, De Wardes," replied I in a suppressed voice.

"Well, why does he not come in?" said milady.

"Shaking off poor Kitty with as much kindness as I could. I made my way into milady's chamber. And here, dear Athos, I must confess that I scarcely knew which predominated, love or jealousy. Her love for De Wardes seems boundless."

"Call it not love, D'Artagnan," said Athos, "it is a desecration of the word."

"At parting she forced this ring upon my finger with a request that I would return her a token of responding affection today, and people don't give such jewels as this away lightly. My heart smote me, and I wished to refuse it. She, however, would not hear of that, but replied, 'No, no; keep that ring for my sake. You will render me likewise a greater service than you are

Not a word about the ring. D'Artagnan gave the open letter to Kitty, who at first was unable to comprehend it, but who became almost wild with joy on reading it a second time. She ran back to the Place Royale.

Milady opened the letter with eagerness, but at the first words she read she became livid. She crushed the paper, and Kitty, fearing she was going to faint, hastened toward her and was beginning to open her dress, but milady started up, pushing her away.

"What do you want with me?" said she, "and why do you place your hand on me?"

"I thought you were going to faint, milady," answered the terrified girl.

"I faint! I! I! Do you take me for a weak, silly woman, then? When I am insulted I do not faint; I avenge myself!"

And she made a sign for Kitty to leave the room.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Dream of Vengeance.

THAT evening milady gave orders that when M. D'Artagnan came as usual, he should be immediately admitted. But he did not come.

The next day Kitty went to see the young man again, and related to him all that had passed on the preceding evening. D'Artagnan smiled; this jealous anger of milady was his revenge.

That evening milady was still more impatient than on the preceding one. She renewed the order relative to the Gascon; but, as before, she expected him in vain.

The next morning, when Kitty presented herself at D'Artagnan's residence with a letter, she was no longer joyous and alert, as she had been on the two preceding days, but on the contrary, as sad as possible.

This letter was in milady's handwriting, only this time it was addressed to M. D'Artagnan, and not to M. de Wardes.

He opened it and read as follows:

Dear M. d'Artagnan—it is wrong thus to neglect your friends, particularly at the moment you are about to leave them for so long a time. My brother-in-law and myself expected you yesterday and the day before, but in vain. Will it be the same this evening? Your very grateful

LADY CLARKE.

"Will you go?" asked Kitty.

D'Artagnan promised Kitty to remain insensible to the seductions of milady and desired her to tell her mistress that he could not be more grateful for her kindnesses than he was, and that he would be obedient to her orders; but he did not dare to write for fear of not being able, to such experienced eyes as those of milady, to disguise his writing sufficiently.

As 9 o'clock struck D'Artagnan was at the Place Royale. "Show him in," said milady in a quick tone, but so piercing that D'Artagnan heard her in the antechamber.

Origin of Oxtail Soup.

During the reign of terror in Paris in 1793 many of the nobility were reduced to starvation and beggary. The abbatoirs sent their hides fresh to the tanneries without removing the tails, and in cleaning them the tails were thrown away. One of the noble beggars asked for a tail, and it was willingly given to him. He took it to his lodging and made (what is now famous) the first dish of oxtail soup. He told others of his good luck, and they annoyed the tanners so much that a price was put upon them.

The Pigmy Hippopotamus.

One of the animals least known to the outside world is the pygmy hippopotamus of West Africa. It is just what its name implies, a pygmy hippopotamus. It is much smaller than the common hippopotamus, being no larger than an ordinary or fair-sized hog. It differs somewhat from the common hippo in the character of its teeth, and instead of spending its time in the rivers and lakes in large herds it wanders about through the jungles singly or in pairs, much after the manner of swine in search of mast.

TO grasp the idea of money making through selecting the better types of live stock farmers need to learn the story of Banostine Belle De Kol, queen of the dairy world. This Holstein cow, now five years old and owned by Dimmick & Bro., Ohio breeders, produced last year 27,404.4 pounds of milk testing 3.86 per cent fat. This means over nine gallons of milk per day, or enough to supply thirty-six families each with a quart of milk daily. If made into butter her fat production would equal 1,322 pounds of butter, or over three and one-half pounds per day for 365 days.

This is all the more remarkable because it was made without her being dry at all before freshening. No other cow has ever produced such an enormous amount of butter fat in a yearly test, and only one has exceeded Banostine's milk record.

Banostine Belle De Kol is a strong, vigorous cow of wonderful capacity and weighs in the neighborhood of 1,600 pounds. She is the daughter of Banostine Belle, who was a grand daughter of Euphrasia A., one of the greatest foundation cows the breed has ever produced. The sire of Banostine Belle De Kol is Friend Hengerveld De Kol Butter Boy.

During the time that Banostine Belle De Kol was in the test she received nearly if not all the time more or less ensilage and alfalfa. When available she received roots and mixed grain ration, the foundation of which was bran oats. She was also fed some dried Lesser Worm Continues Its Evil Work Even on Fruit in Barrels.

In a bulletin on insects which do serious damage to the apple the United States department of agriculture treats of the lesser apple worm. The larvae, it says, do not reach full development as early in the fall as those of the codling moth and may find their way to barrels with the fruit, where they continue to feed, often doing considerable damage. The picture illustrates apples thus injured as found in barrels in the Washington market, in New York city.

The lesser apple worm is probably a native insect, and it infests other fruits, wild and cultivated, including

Its life history and habits probably parallel those of the codling moth. It is known to be present quite generally in orchards from Canada south to Georgia and west to the Rocky mountains. It has been found abundantly in apples in the Puget sound district in Washington and is known also from British Columbia.

The schedule of treatments recommended for the codling moth will be effective in the control of this species.

The treatment for the codling moth is limited almost entirely to spraying the trees with arsenicals, such as paris green or arsenate of lead. The latter is now principally used. In the east the

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with GOLD DUST.

GOLD DUST has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form. The GOLD DUST TWINS need no outside help.

GOLD DUST lathers instantly in hot or cold, hard or soft water—converts itself instantly into thick, vigorous suds that remove grease, grime and settled stains and clear out germs and impurities. It leaves only cleanliness and wholesomeness in their wake.

GOLD DUST spares you and protects your clothes from washboard wear.

Save yourself long hours of weary, dreary toil, and double the life of your clothes by buying and trying a package of GOLD DUST next wash-day.

GOLD DUST is sold in 50 size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

effective in the control of this species.

The treatment for the codling moth is limited almost entirely to spraying the trees with arsenicals, such as paris green or arsenate of lead. The latter is now principally used. In the east the poison is usually combined with a fungicide. In some sections banding of trees is also employed and under special conditions is a valuable adjunct to spraying. From two to five spray applications are given, according to the section of the country and the season.

Of all treatments the first is much the most important. This is given as soon as the blossoms have fallen and has for its object the placing of poison in the calyx cup of each little apple. This treatment may be successfully given during the eight or ten days between the dropping of the petals and the closing of the calyx lobes.

Storing Onions.

Onions to keep well must be stored in a cool and dry place. A little freezing does not necessarily hurt them if they are not exposed to frequent freezing and thawing.

Every farmer should get enough pigs to make his own meat next winter. Bacon is apt to be high, and those who are raising crops to buy their supply are likely to regret it. The best plan is to raise your own meat and have plenty of feed to finish the porkers.—Farm and Ranch.

STEAK FROM BEANS.

The Succulent Tenderloin May Be Imitated in Cheaper Material.

What's there to worry o'er?
Laugh and cook beans!
When beefsteak prices soar
Boycott the butcher store.
Simply cook beans, and more,
More and more beans!

That suggestion has an expert opinion back of it, for very recently R. E. Doolittle, M. D., Dr. Wiley's successor as the "pure food" head of the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, sent forth the slogan, "Beans as a substitute for beef." They are, he says, the very best substitute for that expensive luxury.

It cannot be denied that there is a sort of prejudice in the popular mind against beans. They are accepted when they keep their place as a humble poor relation on the menu. But fancy the emotions of an epicure if beans were placed before him as the piece de resistance! And yet why shouldn't they be? What is the reason of the slurs we hear on beans, such as calling cheap restaurants "beaneries," and jokes like that? It must be just because they don't cost much. Let some wily trust magnate create a corner in beans and send the quotations on them upward a few dozen points and women would probably be doing without hats to buy beans for their husbands' dinners. And then the country would be saying, "How is the poor man to live with beans at the price they are?"

There are many varieties of beans. All are nourishing. All legumes, even in an immature state, as green beans and peas, have more nutritive value than other vegetables, and in the dried forms they approach beef. According to a bulletin issued by the United

Some Things Worth Knowing.
Vacuum Cleaner.—There are moder- ate priced vacuum cleaners which can be obtained. Once a housewife begins to use this wonderful invention she will wonder how she ever got along so many years without one. They are the most sanitary thing on the market for sweeping, cleaning walls, bedding, furniture and draperies.

Beaded Waist.—If the beads have come off from a blouse one can easily sew them on again. Beads come in every imaginable color, so there will be no trouble in matching yours.

Gathering a Rolled Hem.—When gathering a rolled hem hold the material between the thumb and first finger of the left hand and do the rolling with the thumb and first finger of the right hand. Keep the left hand about an inch behind the right and near the hem, so that when the material is rolled one can keep it taut. After a thin, even roll is made over the desired length do the gathering. Gather as you work—that is, after about twelve stitches have been taken gather by pulling the thread.

If lace is to be sewed on a rolled edge hold the material with the right side toward you. Place the lace on this side and overhand it on, making each stitch under the roll and at the extreme edge of the lace.

Covered Boxes.—The fad is on for covering boxes with cretonne. They make dainty and beautiful presents, but the work must be done extremely neat to be successful. It may mean covering one or two boxes before one really catches on to arranging the corners and using the paste dexterously.

CURED OF THIS HORRIBLE DISEASE

Edmonton Girl saved By "Fruit-a-tives"

EDMONTON, ALTA., Nov. 20th 1911. "I had been a sufferer from babyhood with that terrible complaint, Constipation.

I have been treated by physicians and have taken every medicine that I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I concluded that there was no cure for this horrible disease.

Finally, I read of "Fruit-a-tives" and decided to try them, and the effect was marvellous.

The first box gave me great relief, and after I used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that ever did me any good for Chronic Constipation and I want to say to all who suffer as I did—Try "Fruit-a-tives"—why suffer any longer when there is a perfect cure in this great fruit medicine?"

(Miss) E. A. GOODALL.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy in the world made of fruit and the only one that will completely and absolutely cure Constipation.

Mr. Yeigh Lectures To-Night.

Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, who is to lecture at Historical Hall tonight, has probably the best views of Canadian scenery in existence and the Toronto papers, in reporting his new lecture which deals with the War of 1812, were unanimous in their expressions of praise. The lecture is free to the general public and starts at eight o'clock.

At the Opera House.

Mr. I. H. Brisco, manager of the Opera House is to be commended in bringing to Napanee the class of operas such as "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Third Degree." Both these operas were well received and greeted with full houses. The only drawback was the disorderly conduct of some people in the rear of the hall. Mr. Brisco should take some means to secure better order.

I. O. D. E.

Through the kindness of Mrs. W. T. Gibbard the United Empire Loyalist Chapter I.O.D.E. met at her residence on Monday afternoon, Oct. 21st, to commemorate "Trafalgar Day." The Regent, Mrs. A. T. Harshaw, opened the meeting with some interesting and appropriate remarks relative to Lord Nelson, "The hero of great and glorious Memory." She also read some excellent extracts from papers on the Centenary of Sir Isaac Brock, recently celebrated at Queenston Heights. Mrs. John Gibson gave a prose reading on some incidents of the Battle of Queenston Heights, followed by a poem on the great victory and glorious death of General Sir Isaac Brock. Miss Lienau ably rendered some piano selections, and after two well chosen numbers on the gramophone given by Miss Gibbard, the singing of "The Maple Leaf" in mission brought the meeting to a close. An adjournment was then made to the tea room, where, while partaking of the kind hospitality of the hostess, a pleasant social hour was spent. The rooms were tastefully and suitably decorated with the Union Jack and large Canadian flags.

A Fine Department.

The Robinson Company have recently completed what is probably the finest show room for Ladies' Ready-to-wear goods in the district. The whole of the second floor on the west side has been given up to this department of the firm's business and the room has been fitted up with every convenience for handling and showing an immense stock of goods. Over three hundred yards of carpet were used to carpet this room. Ladies' furs, fur coats, fur-lined coats, shells for fur lined coats ladies' skirts, coats, suits and dresses and ladies' ready-to-wear garments are shown in endless variety.
The Robinson Co. have over forty thousand dollars worth of stock in this room and the lady would be hard to satisfy, indeed, who could not be satisfied from this stock. In the rear of the room is a work room for altering ready-to-wear goods and toilet rooms for the convenience of customers.

The Mock Trial.

On Monday evening in the Brisco Opera House Argvill Lodge I.O.O.F. presented a Mock Trial to a full house. The trial was a Breach of Promise case between Petrusha Rugg Perkins, (Miss Alice Paul), plaintiff and Mr. J. Gordon Hall defendant. The defendant was accused of making love to and promising to marry a widow and mistress of a hash house. The defendant sought to prove that he had not made love to the widow but to her niece. Miss Petrusha Ray Perkins, (Miss Norma Shannon), and the letters offered in evidence were sent to the niece, but fell into the hands of the widow. The witnesses for the plaintiff were Miss B. Dyonne and Mr. B. M. Black, and for the defence, Miss Norma Shannon and Messrs. Dr. Cameron Wilson and Mr. F. H. Carson. The plaintiff and defendant were also examined in the box. The plaintiff's attorney was Col. A. Newton, of Worcester, Mass., the defendant's attorney was Mr. Morley Wilson. His Honor, the Judge, W. S. Herrington, Esq., K. C.; Clerk, Mr. W. P. Deroche; Court Officer, Chief Graham; Crier, Mr. C. W. Vandervoort; Jury, Messrs. A. E. Paul, Jas. Douglas, W. Exley, J. E. Robinson, A. C. Baker, M. P. Graham, F. J. Roblin, E. J. Walters, W. F. Ferguson, F. S. Scott, A. Caton and S. Holmes. All the parts were well filled and the remarks of the Judge and the questions and answers of the attorneys and witnesses kept the audience laughing most of the time. Miss Alice Paul played the part of the designing widow splendidly, and Miss Norma Shannon as the love sick niece was particularly good, while Miss Bernice Dyonne made a splendid witness. Mr. Gordon Hall as the defendant played his part well and left the people of Napanee something to remember him by on his last appearance in Napanee, as he left on the midnight train the same evening for Toronto. The attorneys, Messrs. Wilson and Newton, were the principal fun makers in their examination of the witnesses and Jury and their summing up the case.
